CANCELED

LAS, ANTH 196-10  Urbanization in Latin America  CRN 13500  4 credits  (SS)  CBE Global
Urbanization has wrought profound changes to society. Latin America is the world’s most urbanized region, with 80% of the population living in cities. Drawing on examples from urban Latin America, this class will explore the following questions: How have cities developed historically? How do urban spaces take on social, cultural, and symbolic value? And how are cities currently affected by globalization, changing technologies, and neoliberal economic trends?  Professor Sheehan  M, W; 11:10 - 12:25 p.m.

LAS, ANTH 197 Tacos without Borders: Food, Culture, & Society  CRN Pending  4 credits  (SS)
Food is central to human life, but how food is defined, acquired, and consumed varies widely throughout the world. This class addresses the questions:
• How have historical changes in food acquisition shaped society?
• How is globalization re-shaping what & how we eat?
• What is the role of food in building identity, organizing society, and creating social practices?
Open to any undergraduate student interested in the topic. No prerequisite required.  Professor Megan Sheehan  M, W; 11:10 - 12:25 p.m.
LAS, HIST 198-10  Cuba, Castro and the Cold War  CRN 13468  4 credits  (HU)
This course will examine the most significant political revolution in twentieth-century Latin America. It will do so by examining multiple topics, ranging from the island's conflicted relationship with the United States to its support for armed struggle in the Third World and its campaign to create the "Socialist New Man." Using both primary and secondary documents, students will be asked to offer their own original, nuanced interpretation of the Cuban Revolution. Professor Shrader  M, W; 8:45 - 10:00 a.m.

LAS, MILL GS, ENGL 202-10  Latin American In Fact, In Fiction  CRN 13915  4 credits  (HU)
This class couples a survey of Latin American literature in translation with an interdisciplinary approach to the study of Latin America. Departing initially from readings of literary and cinematographic works, our analyses will engage methodologies from multiple disciplines including history, sociology, and cultural studies. Accordingly, this course will examine critical developments in Latin American aesthetics along with the cultural climates in which they matured. This course assumes no prior study of Spanish, Portuguese, or Latin American culture. Professor Bush  M, W; 12:45 - 2:00 p.m.

LAS, SPAN 263-10  The Spanish American Short Story  CRN 13540  4 credits  (HU) CBE Global Comparative study of representative works by major writers such as Quiroga, Borges, and Cortazar, among others. Department permission required. Professor Bush  M, W; 8:45 - 10:00 a.m.

LAS, SPAN 265-10  Spanish and Latin American Cinema  CRN 12871  4 credits  (HU) CBE Global
An introduction to cinema in the Spanish-speaking world. Oral discussion and written analysis of selected films. Students view films independently. Prerequisite: SPAN 141 or equivalent. Department permission required. Professor Prieto  M, W; 2:35 - 3:50 p.m.

IR 323-10  Political Economy of Industrialization and Development  CRN 14129  4 credits  (SS)
Political foundation and consequences of economic development and growth. Global inequality in the rates and levels of economic development. Analysis of the differences between the development strategies adopted in different parts of the world. Explanations for patterns of success and failure. Origins of underdevelopment; the politics of failed development strategies; the challenge of the increasingly competitive world economy and relations with the U.S. and other developed nations. Prerequisite IR 010 and IR 125. Department permission required. Professor Duvanova  T, R; 9:20 - 10:35 p.m.

LAS, AAS, ENGL 397-10  Poetics of Blackness in Black and Latino Lit and Performance  CRN 12926  4 credits  (HU)
This is an interdisciplinary course that explores the representation and discourse of blackness in Black and Latino cultural production. Specifically the course will explore how black experiences are represented, embodied, performed, and theorized. Some authors/artists that we will analyze include: Junot Díaz, Cardi B, Beyonce, and Gloria Anzaldúa among others. As part of the course students will write creatively and academically as well as be in live conversation with spoken-word poets and playwrights. Professor Zamora  T, R; 10:45 - 12:00 p.m.

LAS, ENGL 398-10  Latin Youth Culture  CRN 14053  4 credits  (HU)
This course seeks to engage youth literature as a means of examining major themes in the field of Latino/a Studies. We will also use comparative methodology in order to examine how Latino/a literature for youth reacts to norms within mainstream youth literature and culture. Through a combination of critical and literary theory, we will focus on works which portray themes of commodification, history, migration/immigration, colonialism, and racial, ethnic, cultural, and national identity. Assignments include a short written analysis of a text (5 pages) and a longer, research project (8-10 pages). In particular, we will approach these questions throughout the course:
- How have Latino/a authors used literature for youth as a means of portraying Latino/a history?
- Is there a “brand” of Latino/a youth and children’s culture, including youth protagonists, favored by publishers and the public?
- How does youth literature address the socio-political and socio-cultural issues affecting Latino/as in the U.S.?
- How does this medium portray these issues differently than other literature and/or media?
- In terms of historical period, how do these texts reflect different modes of "Latinidad," American identity, and citizenship?  Professor Jimenez-Garcia  M, W; 11:10 - 12:25 p.m.
